During our embryo condition, New York was to France and England exactly what Sicily became in the prophetic language of Pyrrhus, for Rome and for Carthage, the training-ground for British and French soldiers and generals, their regulars, provincials, and Colonial militia. In a similar school to that of Schuyler, and among many of the principal actors on the fields of 1776 and 1777, Washington prepared himself for his extraordinary station, and with such experience, Selmyler made himself the eminently useful man he turned out to be-sufficiently practical to ruin so renowned a professional as Burgoyne, to whom all the world imputed genius. He was the second Major General nominated by the Colonial Congress, second only in grade to Washington, and second to no man in the virtues which constitute one of nature's nobility-second in nothing that is requisite to complete and make up the Christian gentleman. To whom, of all our continental major generals, excepting Washington, would such language as this be applicable unless to Major General Philip Schuyler. To those present, who may not be intimately acquainted with the history of the American Revolution, such language may appear like exaggeration. No one will esteem it so when he hears the following attest from the pen of me of our most truthful, judicious, learned...
